Kitchen Boy – November 2011
IHA Affordable Innovation 2011

In the category of “Off The KitchenBoy Path”, I spoke with the team from Clean Ones. They make truly innovative household gloves that can be used in many rooms of the house. I was drawn to the pink dish gloves on the table. This particular line Benefits the Susan G Komen for the Cure®, with Clean Ones donating 10% of all retail sales of this glove to support breast cancer research and advocacy, with a minimum donation guarantee of $25,000. I got a pair for myself, yes real men wear pink, and a couple of pairs for some friends. I am testing them out to prove some of benefits. And to answer that thought, no not all household gloves are the same. These are Latex free and designed to provide greater moisture absorption than is possible with the standard flocked lining. In addition, they are formulated to remain odor free, even after extended use. They are also 100% free of BPA and Phthalates, DEHP and DOP so they are safe to use by anyone.
